Advances in Cancer Treatment: Insights from a doctor and patients

New treatments have improved the prognosis for a number of cancers. One breakthrough is immunotherapy, which uses the body's immune system to prevent, control and eliminate cancers.

A panel will address a wide range of issues:

- Learn how immunotherapy works, its potential and ongoing research
- Understand treatment stages, how to advocate for yourself and locate and assess resources
- Hear patients describe their journey in coping with treatment and living with cancer as a chronic disease and glean a family member's insights about quality of life issues

Speakers:

- Dr. Julius Strauss, oncologist and researcher
- Three patients in different stages of cancer treatment and remission
- Rabbi Menachem Winter, Rosh Kollel of the Greater Washington Community Kollel
